Twelve Stab Wounds Inflicted Upon

Black Hand vengeance. The crime was committed in a dark passageway in the basement of an East Side ten-ement within the hearing of the janitor of the house and his assistant, who were aroused from their sleep in the boiler room a few feet away by the loud talking of men in a foreign tongue and the laughing of the women. Then they heard a scream and the fall of a hody and one of the women, speaking in English, urging her companions to "hurry out of here." As the footsteps of the murderrer, died away the imitors hurried derers died away the janitors hurried into the passageway and stumbled over Pucllato's body.

Examination showed that the man had been stabbed twelve times in the face and body before a stiletto thrust had found the victim's heart. The weapon was left in the fatal wound. A semi-circular cut on the cheek marked the vengence of the Elbert marked the vengeance of the "Black
